St. Margaret of Scotland

Feast Day: 16th November

Margaret of Scotland was an amazing woman. She was queen of her country, as well as the mother of eight children. Both of these jobs kept her very busy. Yet, she managed to help establish schools and homes for the sick and the old. She was a friend to many. Everyone loved her cheerful attitude. Even in the most difficult times, Margaret found strength through God to keep a smile on her face.

She received great happiness from helping others. The poor in her village were always a concern to Margaret. She did not feel that being a queen made her more important. Not only did she give the poor money, clothing and food, she visited them as well. Like Jesus, Margaret's love and kindness went out to every person she met.
