Reflection: Not everything in life is fixable.

Not everything in life is fixable. We are imperfect souls who endlessly strive for unattainable perfection. Whatever dilemmas or challenges we face, we can only cope to the best of our human ability. We pray, beg and latch onto whatever glimmer of hope we can salvage. It is only natural to be overwhelmed when confronted with grief, serious illness or similarity debilitating stresses. But survival is instinctive and despite feeling trapped in our own emotional distress, we begin to realise slowly but surely that the only way to recover our peace of mind is to accept unconditionally – even if slightly begrudgingly – that which we cannot change or control. Life can't heal the wounds but it can teach us how to live with the scars. Not easy when conflicting emotions are raging – but if we try to carry the cross we have been given to bear with dignity and an open mind, balance and healing are encouraged bringing our inner strength to surface. Patience and perseverance carried a snail to Jerusalem and so will it carry us on our journey to resolve our inner peace.

Dig deep – your future life and contentment are relying on you.
