Reflection

Life isn't all about the big wins.
Because it's the little wins that are really the big things.
Those tiny moments that make your heart sing.
Like those slow mornings that start with coffee and toast, followed by slow days with the ones those you love most.
It's getting warm after coming in from the cold, the laughs and smiles that come from the stories you've told.
Catching your breath after those hugs so tight;
that moment of wonder when you can see the stars in the darkest of nights.
Life is too short and too precious.
To ignore the little things, is to look past all the goodness.
Never underestimate the value in the seemingly mundane.
For, there's nothing little about the things, that one day, you'd give anything to have again.
