Reflection:

A Tribute to Sr. Stanislaus Kennedy

In quite streets where shadows lie,
she walks - a lantern held up high.
A heart that listens, hands that heal,
a spirit forged in faith and steel.

She saw the ones the world passed by,
and met their pain with gentle eye.
She build a home where hope could stay,
and love would never go away.

Through storms of doubt,
through nights of need,
she planted light in word and deed.
O Sr. Stan, your soul's pure flame has carved in hearts a sacred flame.

"We must never become immune to the sufferings of others. Compassion is not weakness - its our greatest strength."

By Sr. Stanislaus Kennedy
