Let it Be

Jesus has come "from Galilee to John at the Jordan, to be baptized by him". It's something John never expected or foresaw. He didn't plan on this. "I need to be baptized by you," he says to Jesus, "and do you come to me"? Baptizing Jesus does not fit John's expectations of who Jesus is and what he will do. Everything about this moment is contrary to what John believes, wants, and expects.

Circumstances crop up in our own lives that goes against what we expect or want. What do we do when our prayers are not answered, our expectations are not met? What do we do when our life is interrupted?

Today's gospel sets before us two choices. We can either resist, forbid, and try to prevent what is coming to us, which is what John wants to do. Or we can permit it and "let it be," which is what Jesus tells John to do.

"Let it be so now," Jesus says to John. "Then he consented." What if that is to be our way too? What if Jesus is saying to us, "Let it be so now?" What if we too are being asked to consent?

The consent to which Jesus calls us isn't simply about giving up, acquiescing, approving, or agreeing. It doesn't mean we have to like or want what is happening. It does, however, mean that we face it and deal with it.

Consent means we show up to our life and be present to whatever is before us and whatever is coming to us, even if it is difficult, painful, or the last thing we wanted. Consent isn't about being in control or having all the answers. It means we don't turn back or run away from what is in front of us.

Consent doesn't mean passively accepting whatever happens. It means actively giving ourselves to the circumstances, relationships, and people before us. It's an act of risk and vulnerability. And it's a profession of faith, hope, and love. It means staying open and remaining receptive to whatever in that moment is being asked of us in the name of God.

That is how Jesus lived his life. His life was a continual yes to the world; he lived a life of consent.

He consented to bring good news to the poor;
He consented to welcome the outsider and foreigner;
He consented to hospitality for the hungry and thirsty;
He consented to compassion and healing for the blind, deaf, and lame;
He consented to struggle with God and himself in the Garden of Gethsemane;
He consented to courage and perseverance as he took up and carried his cross;
He consented to reconcile with Peter after being denied by him three times;
He consented to humility when soldiers mocked and beat him;

Jesus never turned away, backed down, or withheld his consent. He was present and showed up to whoever or whatever was before him. Every time Jesus consented he stepped into the river of humanity and immersed himself in the waters of life. Every time we consent we too wade into the deep waters of life. "Let it be so now."

Godparents

To be a Godparent is an honour and a privilege, but it is also a commitment: Choosing someone to be a Godparent means that you would like this person to be in a special relationship with your child. The Godparent is to be a guardian and helper in every way but especially in matters of the Spirit and Christian faith. Your child is being baptised in the Catholic faith, parents and godparents make solemn promises during the ceremony. For this reason, a Godparent should be at least 16 years of age; a Catholic who has received the sacraments of Baptism, Confession, Holy Communion and Confirmation: and someone who regularly attends Mass.

Prayer for your Godchild

Beloved godchild,
grow and grow with wild abandonment
and in the safety of God's loving embrace.

May you be kind.

May you know deep love, care, and friendship.

May you come to embrace
your faith and identity.

May you always know how loved you are.

You are a unique creation of God's,
are loved into being, just as you are!

May you know the miracle of your smile,
laughter, tears, sadness, despair, and joy.

May you be gentle with yourself
as you continue to grow and explore a life beyond your knowing.

May God bless you, always.
