St Brigid – Feast Day: 1st February.

Saint Brigid is the Secondary Patron of Ireland and is renowned for her hospitality, almsgiving and care of the sick. She was born c 454 AD in Faughart near Dundalk, Co Louth. When she was young her father wished to make a very suitable marriage for her but she insisted in consecrating her virginity to God. She received the veil and spiritual formation probably from Saint Mel and stayed for a period under his direction in Ardagh. Others followed her example and this led her to found a double monastery in Kildare with the assistance of Bishop Conleth. The tradition is that when Brigid approached a local chieftain in Kildare looking for a piece of land on which she would build a monastery he refused her. She then asked him if he would give her as much land as her cloak covered. He had no problem with this and more or less laughed at her as she placed her cloak on the ground. However, miraculously, her cloak expanded to cover a huge area! The chieftain was a man of his word and gave her this land – enough for a double monastery! The Saint Brigid's Cross, in legend used by Brigid to explain the Christian faith, remains a popular sign of God's protection. The tradition regarding the Saint Brigid's Cross comes from the story that she was at the bedside of a pagan chieftain who was dying. To pass the time she started to make a cross from the rushes on the ground of the room where the chieftain and herself were. When he asked her what she was doing, she replied that she was making a cross and explained how Jesus died on a cross before rising from the dead and thereby saved the human race. When he heard this, the pagan chieftain decided to become a Christian before he died. Saint Brigid died in 524 AD and devotion to her is widespread not only throughout Ireland but throughout the world.
