A NOTE FROM FR. JIM.....

In this weekend's Gospel, Jesus tells us the Parable of the Talents. We are all given different gifts and talents, in different measures. But these gifts are not simply for ourselves. They are given for the good of others and, ultimately, for God's glory. The Lord invites us to participate in His extraordinary work. Everything we have is pure gift, and when we generously share our time, talents and treasure God can work wonders through us. Sometimes even the smallest act of kindness can have consequences far beyond anything we could imagine. There is a wonderful story told about two teenage boys, Billy Graham and his friend Grady Wilson, who went to hear the famous preacher Mordecai Ham back in 1934. When they arrived, the tent was packed. Unable to find two seats together, they turned to leave. But an usher spotted them and called them back. "Come on, lads, I'll find room for you!" And he did. That evening, as the story goes, both young men gave their lives to Christ. They went on to become Christian preachers, bringing the message of Christ to millions around the world. But here's the remarkable thing. The real hero of this story isn't Billy Graham, his friend, or even the famous preacher. It's the usher. An ordinary man whose simple act of kindness had consequences he could never have imagined. And that usher could be you or me. A kind word, a helping hand, a little generosity, or simply being open to the prompting of the Holy Spirit could set something wonderful in motion, with consequences we may never see in this life. So, this weekend, let us pray that we may be like that unknown usher, attentive to the Holy Spirit and willing to use our gifts to lead others closer to Christ. As Mother Teresa beautifully put it: "I am like a little pencil in his hand. He does the thinking. He does the writing."
